

PETER ATENCIO - DIRECTOR

PROFILE

Peter Atencio has been making films since he was old enough to be entrusted with a video camera; he's been making them professionally since he was old enough to be entrusted with other people's money. Two feature films, two television pilots, many episodes of various web series, and hundreds of short films later, and you're now reading about his career as a director. When he's not busy making unique, entertaining, and visually stunning works, he keeps himself busy by writing resume profiles in the third person.

SKILLS

Peter believes there are three qualities which determine the proficiency of a director: communication skills, impeccable taste, and the ability to make good decisions in a timely fashion. He's developed those qualities by serving as a writer, director, producer, editor, and cinematographer on a huge variety of projects large and small, allowing him to gain insight into every aspect of production, from the inception of a project to the completion and delivery of a finished and salable product.

REFERRALS

Peter welcomes you to speak with any of the producers, writers, and other colleagues with whom he's collaborated, and will happily provide contact information of said parties upon request.
